Diocesan Altar Guild (“A greater reverence and care of everything that pertains to the Altar and Chancel”. Bishop Heistand
Honorary Canons of the Cathedral (Since the Middle Ages, it has been a custom of the Church to honor certain persons with the title of Cathedral Canon. At first the title applied only to those who served on the Bishop’s staff; later, to those who worked in a Cathedral’s ministries and lived together in the Cathedral Close (within the Cathedral walls or enclosure); later yet, to those who were honored for special service to the Church, even if not performed on the Cathedral staff. “Residential canons” are part of the permanent staff of the Cathedral and are responsible for its services and ministries. “Honorary canons” have other employment, but are entitled to special honor in the Cathedral and the Church (in large English cathedrals they have a reserved seat or “stall” in the sanctuary), and both kinds of canon are addressed as “Canon...” in writing or speaking.)
