

The Stevenson School for Ministry

“How to Pray About This”

October 25 and 26, 2019

St. Cyril Center, Danville

Follow-up from the “Called to Heal a Broken World”
August Learning Weekend

Inspired by Bishop Scanlan’s blog, “How to Pray about this,” and designed as a follow up to “Healing a Broken World,” we take the next step, which leads us to discover ways to prayer. The Rev. Becca Stevens presentation called us to make the connections between prayer, and how with God’s help, people are transformed by God as they turn from the powers of hate, fear and injustice to the way of truth and love and hope.

All are welcome to engage in this power of prayer weekend and discover stories of how to pray, stories of prayer and healing, and how people manage in turning from a broken system to a way of healing, from a life of pain to a life of wholeness, from inadequacies to fulfillment.

We will also be sharing the resource, Traveling the Way of Love: Episode 4, that features Thistle Farms and Chris Sikkema <https://www.episcopalchurch.org/posts/publicaffairs/traveling-way-love-episode-4-turn-0>

Also during this weekend, the Rev. Canon Dan Morrow will offer insights into communities through Intercultural Competence using the IDI (Intercultural Development Inventory) as a way to measure readiness for deepening prayer through comprehension of cultural understanding. All are welcome!

Registration to follow. For more information, contact The Very Rev. Robyn Szoke-Coolidge, rszoke@diocesecpa.org